Speaking at the event, High Commissioner Kumar Tuhin inter-alia, outlined the rich and distinguished historical ties between India and Africa, which were cemented by geographical proximity, shared history and a common understanding on global issues and development challenges. He mentioned that the importance of India-Africa ties had been consistently growing and that both India and Africa had important roles to play in the process of the building of a new international architecture that placed development, peace and stability in developing countries at its heart.

High Commissioner mentioned that three India-Africa Forum Summit (IAFS) meetings have taken place, the last one in October 2015 at which India offered for development projects in Africa concessional credit of $10 billion over the next five years, grant assistance of $ 600 million, an India Africa Development Fund of $10 million and 50,000 scholarships during the next five years.

Under the extended political outreach from India during the last four years, visits at the level of India’s President, Vice President or Prime Minister have taken place to more than twenty five countries of the African continent.

India Africa trade has crossed $70 billion. India is the fifth largest country investing in Africa, with investments during the last twenty years crossing $54 billion creating jobs and opportunities here. India Africa development partnership truly reflects the philosophy of the south-south cooperation encompassing bilateral, regional and pan-African cooperation and working at different levels including trade and investment, technology, skills upgradation, line of credits and grants.

High Commissioner Kumar Tuhin in particular drew attention to the speech of Prime Minister of India at the Parliament of Uganda on July 25, 2018, during which the ten guiding principles of India's engagement with Africa were inter alia outlined:

One, Africa will be at the top of India's priorities. India will continue to intensify and deepen its engagement with Africa.

Two, India's development partnership will be guided by Africa's priorities.

Three, India will keep its markets open and make it easier and more attractive to trade with India. India will support its industry to invest in Africa.

Four, India will harness its experience with digital revolution to support Africa's development; improve delivery of public services; extend education and health; spread digital literacy; expand financial inclusion; and mainstream the marginalised.

Five, India will work with African countries to improve Africa's agriculture.

Six, India's partnership will address the challenges of climate change. India will work with Africa to ensure a just international climate order; to preserve biodiversity; and, adopt clean and efficient energy sources.

Seven, India will strengthen cooperation and mutual capabilities in combating terrorism and extremism; keeping the cyberspace safe and secure; and, supporting the UN in advancing and keeping peace;.

Eight, India will work with African nations to keep the oceans open and free for the benefit of all nations.

Nine, as global engagement in Africa increases, we must all work together to ensure that Africa does not once again turn into a theatre of rival ambitions, but becomes a nursery for the aspirations of Africa's youth.

Ten, Just as India and Africa fought colonial rule together, they will work together for a just, representative and democratic global order that has a voice and a role for one-third of humanity that lives in Africa and India.

India's own quest for reforms in the global institutions is incomplete without an equal place for Africa. That will be a key purpose of India foreign policy
